My name is Grace Delaney. I was born into this country’s most admired political family. When I was sixteen, the media dubbed me “America’s Princess”. I hate being called that, especially since I discovered the terrifying secret hidden behind my family’s glittering public image.

A few months ago, I graduated from college determined to make a life of my own. But now, suddenly, Adam Falzon is in it. The head of an Old World family with a reputation for ruthlessness, he looks like a fallen angel. As attracted as I am to him, I’ve come to suspect that Adam is hiding secrets even more dangerous and deadly than my own. I don’t dare give into my feelings for him.

My emotions were a twisted knot of contradictions and confusion. I hated him. I wanted him. He terrified and enraged me. He shattered all the barriers that I had built around myself.

With him, I burned and in that burning all the fear and dread I had felt turned to ash. Like the sun, Adam eclipsed all else.

"Grace," he murmured, his voice dark with a mix of reverence and surprise, as though he, too, didn’t understand what was happening between us.

The cracks already opened in me widened yet further. I stood on both sides of an abyss, staring across at dueling versions of myself. I knew what I should feel—hatred, rage, determination to get away, back to my life and all I had to deal with there. But just as starkly, I couldn’t hide from the truth.

Desire for him and all he was--illicit, wrong, forbidden--ran like quicksilver through my veins.

He bent his dark head, the wet silk of his hair spilling over my bared breasts, and kissed a line of fire between us, down my belly and further.

Sweet, molten heat stole over me. Tears formed in the corners of my eyes. I cried out, driven higher and higher by my tormentor's sinfully skilled mouth and hands. Desperately, I struggled to fight what he was making me feel.

"Come for me, beautiful girl."

To my horror, the pressure building in me surged in response to his command. I climaxed, shattering under him, crying out in helpless ecstasy.

Falling...

Pain. Hot and throbbing, it draws me out of the darkness.

Cold. The dank chill of bare ground claws deep into my aching bones.

Fear. With every breath, a thin trail of terror inches through my fragile consciousness.

Ethan is coming. I can sense him. But who is he really? My rescuer? Or my captor?

Rising...

Life? Or death?

After all the dark passion and betrayal, Ethan and I hang in the balance, apart yet still connected.

Two roads lie before us. One to the darkness. The other to the light.

Only we can choose.

His Lordship’s Downfall

The Austen Series: Erotic Romance

On Amazon in ebook and paperback, and in Kindle Unlimited. Click here.
Lord Adrian Burleigh is a handsome, autocratic aristocrat with a taste for sensual excess. His privileged life is comfortable, controlled and predictable until, that is, he decides to acquire a “pet”.

Early on, the reader is likely to conceive a desire to do terrible things to Lord Adrian despite, or because of, his wicked appeal. Rest assured, the arrogant lord will receive his just deserts and become the better man for it.

Warning: Sexual exploitation, brazen revenge, graphic language and the use of unconventional devices for intimate purposes are only a few of this tale’s many sins. Read solely at your own discretion.

Lord Adrian stepped back a pace and said, "Come."

His pet did so on her knees, her head down, her gaze properly averted. She was slim and pale; her skin held the opalescent sheen of pearl. The curves he glimpsed of her breasts, her hips, her ass were more than adequately arousing. Poised on all fours, her breasts hung delectably, swaying slightly.

It truly was a moment to be savored. For him, at least.

Lord Adrian Burleigh stared at the beautiful, elegantly dressed young woman who stood beside his bed. Unless his reason had deserted him entirely, a few short hours before she had been flat on her back under him in that same bed, his naked, obedient and infinitely fuckable pet.

Now he fancied that behind that lovely facade, he glimpsed something entirely different. The black wings and sharp talons of a harpy who completely bewilderingly from his point of view suddenly had the upper hand.

Welcome to the Odalisque, the world’s most exclusive ‘club intime’. If this is your first visit, a few words of explanation may be in order. The tall, lithely muscular and all around stunningly handsome man lounging at the bar is the club’s founder and owner, Lucius Belmont. “Luscious Lucius” some call him. A word to the wise, enjoy your visit but do nothing to vex him. Especially not now.

Lucius is pre-occupied with a problem unlike any he has ever encountered before. That rarest of creatures, a virgin, has wandered into his domain. Natalia Bollinger is everything she should not be, exquisitely beautiful, unbearably arousing and uncannily able to penetrate all his hard won defenses. In an epic showdown of vice versus virtue, limits will be tested, lines will be crossed and all the rules will be broken. Take a seat. The show is about to begin!

“Stay still,” the abbess instructed.

With an effort, Natalia managed to do so. The riding crop slid under her bare breasts, lifting each slightly as though to test their weight. It proceeded over her flat stomach to her ass where, without warning, it flicked sharply.

When it probed the gap between her thighs, she could not help but cry out in protest. Once again, her gaze focused on the large, gilded mirror. If he was on the other side, watching… She had the sudden, piercing sense of having been put on display for Lucifer himself.

Dozens of beautiful, skilled women would have happily provided him with anything he desired. But he wanted her, the world’s most infuriating virgin. Wanted her under him, her exquisite legs spread wide, her pussy bare, his name on her lips, pleading...

Above all, he wanted her at his mercy. Then and only then would he get the truth from her.

The irony that the one woman he wanted to fuck was the same woman he should stay as far away from as possible did not escape him. But neither was he deterred by it.

Whatever Natalia’s reasons for entering his domain, he had his own plans for her. Nothing would be allowed to interfere with them.

Charles had chosen a tropical island paradise for their honeymoon with every amenity a romantic couple could desire. But instead of indulging poor, lovely Gemma with spa treatments and the like, he insisted on taking her out into the wilderness beyond the resort. There he amused himself flogging every inch of her skin with palm fronds until she attained a rosy glow, staking her out at the water line so that the incoming tide lapped maddeningly at her swollen pussy, and fucking her in all sorts of shocking ways.

In between, he enjoyed watching her run up and down the beach, her breasts and bottom bouncing with every bound until she was quite breathless.

Reaching up to the folding table where she had set out her paints, Charles availed himself of a sable brush. Swirling the fan shaped tip between her glistening folds, he coated the sable strands with her juices before stroking them over and around her swollen clit. The grass was soft and cool beneath her heated skin. She was close, so close when he stopped suddenly and tossed the brush aside. Instinctively, Gemma braced herself, certain that something even more devastating was coming. How right she was. From the depths of a pocket in his cargo shorts, her exceedingly wicked husband withdrew a small, battery powered wand.

My intent was to control her long enough to find out what why she had broken into my apartment while providing just enough physical intimidation to get her to tell me.

But Blondie had other ideas. Her head reared back, then quickly slammed forward in a move that could have jammed the cartilage of my nose up into my brain. I barely managed to avoid the blow while also fending off what she was trying to do to my balls and the rest of me.

Any lingering doubt I had about how to deal with her vanished. So far as I was concerned, she was the person in the wrong. All I was doing was defending myself. If she wanted to fight dirty, fine by me.
It wasn’t until I tried to sit up that I realized my hands were tied. A sickening bolt of fear went through me, different from what I’d felt before. Fear not of what my own actions might lead to but that someone really meant to do me harm. Someone I wasn’t strong enough to stop.

The man who had shoved me up against a wall and held me there while he searched me with such humiliating thoroughness.

My gaze fell on a stunningly gorgeous woman striding in my direction. She was in her early twenties with long, mahogany hair and sun-kissed skin. Tall with curves in all the right places and legs that went on forever. The way she moved was both graceful and strong.

I was trying to remember that I was at the airport to meet Yuri’s daughter when Gorgeous walked right up to me.

“Chase Hollis?” she asked.

We went to Frederica’s on Houston. It was just around the corner from my office. I knew it strictly by reputation. The vibe was not so much quickie hook up as old fashioned seduction. Definitely more my speed.

I wanted to seduce Feeney, really, really wanted it. The truth was that I had since the first time we’d crossed paths. Just admitting that to myself made me even more hot and bothered than I already had been.

I wanted to run my tongue over those mysterious tats that so far I’d only glimpsed below the rolled up sleeves of his business shirt or above the edge of his collar. I wanted to taste him all over and then I wanted to...

The edge of the bed was behind my knees. I let myself fall, pulling Feeney down with me. His jacket was gone, tossed aside in the mad race to the bedroom. But he still had his shirt on. I jerked it free of his waistband and yanked at the buttons, desperate to feel his skin against mine.

He growled deep in his throat, the sound sending a shiver through me. The veneer of civilization was falling away from us both, leaving only the rawest, most primal need. Cool air touched my thighs as he dragged my skirt up. I lifted my hips to help him, then moaned as an unerring finger found the edge of my thong and pushed it aside.

Emboldened by the darkness, I grip the fabric of my nightgown. Slowly, I begin to raise it, baring my ankles, my calves, a little higher until suddenly I freeze.

Ian is standing nearby, watching me. My entire body blushed. His chest is bare above black pajama bottoms that ride low, exposing the V of his hip muscles and his tight, washboard abdomen. As the rain blows over his broad shoulders and cut torso, his skin glistens darkly.

“I told you to go to bed.” His voice is soft, almost detached.

Gripping my braid, he gives a little tug, drawing me even closer to him. A low groan breaks from him as his mouth claims mine. I feel the sudden, sharp nip of his teeth on my lower lip before his tongue plunges into me, exploring, stroking, demanding.

“Last chance, Amelia,” he says against my mouth. “Go back inside now.”

In 2017, I had the great pleasure of being one of a select group of authors chosen to launch Amazon’s Krinar Kindle World based on the bestselling Krinar Chronicles by Anna Zaires.

I first discovered the Krinar Chronicles as a reader and was immediately fascinated by them. In the near future, humans are no longer the most advanced species on earth. Instead, our world is ruled by the Krinar, a mysterious race from another galaxy. From tender encounters in ancient Greece to addictive liaisons in modern day Manhattan, humans finds themselves intensely drawn to the dangerously possessive and inhumanly beautiful Krinar.
